

I Don't See Why We Have to Have Our Meetings in a Tower*

An Editorial Photo-essay

Self-sufficiency is bad inference: dialogue precedes.

* V.I. Lenin's alleged response on seeing Vladimir Tatlin's 1919 maquette for the planned Monument to the Third International

Sincerity does not preclude the hilarity that comes from total failure.

This is not the first time, but do not underestimate the resemblance.

The order is binding.

Pages 5 - 9

I Don't See Why We Have to Have Our Meetings in a Tower

Tom Robinson & Jon K. Shaw

Copyright the authors 2012

Tom Robinson is an artist, writer and co-editor of Rattle. He lives and works in London. Recent exhibitions include Platform Translation: 4th Edition, on Books and Translation in Beirut and Spotlight in Oxford.

Jon K. Shaw is co-editor of Rattle. He lives and edits in south east London.